Labor May Take Direct Political Action This Year

Labor Non-Partisan League New Factor in National Campaign

BUT SPLIT LOOMS

Unions Already Divided by Industry Vs. Craft Controversy

BY BYRON PRICE
(Chief of Bureau, Associated Press, Washington)

For reasons well hidden under the surface, the launching of the pro-Roosevelt "labor's non-partisan league" has aspects and possibilities usually lacking in similar ventures. It has always been a disputed point whether the "labor vote" can be lined up with any semblance of solidarity presidential candidate at any time, for any Democratic or Republican. Some labor leaders have felt however, that if such a thing were possible, it would be a year like 1936, when class distinctions are much emphasized and the party lines badly tangled. Therefore the advent of a new league was certain to attract wide attention. It is the beginning of a cohesive political, at least on a part of labor. The question cannot be answered at this writing, but one generally overlooked fact presents itself. While outwardly the league is dedicated to harmonizing labor support behind the president, certain elements exist which hint, instead, at a possible transference to the political theater of organized labor's big family feud.

Strike Is Ate
For years two factions within the American Federation of Labor have been at odds. Recently the quarrel has become acute. One faction wants all workers in each big industry organized into one big union. The other wants individual unions based on occupation.

Those who want to organize by industry alone include George L. Berry, head of the printing pressmen; John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers; and Sidney Hillman, president of the clothing workers. A principal in the other group is Daniel J. Tobin, head of the teamsters.

Berry was chairman of the Democratic national committee's labor division in 1928. Tobin held the same position in 1932. For some months now it has appeared that Tobin, and not Berry, would have the job in 1936.

In this situation Hillman came to Berry with a problem. Hillman is a member of the Socialist party, and so are many members of his union. How could these socialists be lined up for Roosevelt without the necessity of joining the Democratic party?

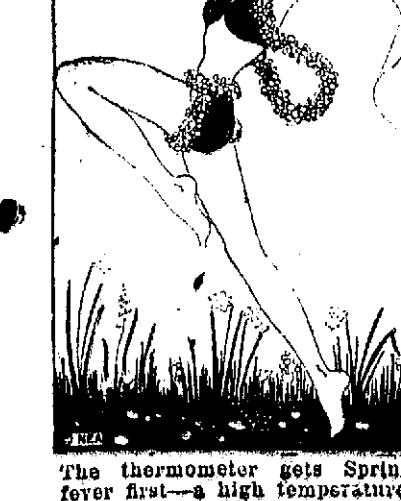

The two of them put their heads together. The league resulted. They called Lewis, a Republican, by telephone.

Major Leagues Open Baseball Season

Tigers Favored by Grayson to Take Flag in American

Wealthy Red Sox, Yankees, Indians, Also Are Possibilities

BUT MANY "IFS"

Powerful Detroit Team, Still Stronger This Year, Is "Tops"

BY HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Writer, NEA Service

NEW YORK.—Give Wesley Clark Ferrell and Robert Moses Grove another season such as they enjoyed in 1935, and the rich and reinforced Boston Red Sox might win the American League pennant.

If Anthony Lazzeri is able to remain in the thick of things and Vernon Gomez again locates the hand-cuffs, the New York Yankees may lose their second-place complex.

Its managerial difficulties apparently remedied by the accession of Stephen F. O'Neill and with the diminutive catcher, Frankie Pytlak, reconditioned, the Cleveland club has the potential pitching strength and the punch to take it all, but—

Each of the three outfits that stand a chance to beat out Detroit has as many or more "ifs" than the Tigers. That being the case there is only one thing for the prognosticator to do—stick with the two-time champions.

So it is our guess that the American League clubs will finish in an order something like this: Detroit, Boston, New York, Cleveland, Chicago, St. Louis, Washington and Philadelphia.

Mass senility scarcely figures in the handicap the Bengals to such a degree that they will be halted by old age.

The club's principal concern along this line is Mickey Cochrane, 33, who

Cubs Look Like a Good Bet to Repeat National Triumph

1935 Champion's Average Age This Season Is Still Only 26

A TWO-CLUB RACE

St. Louis Cardinals Due to Pull Away From Field, With Cubs

NEW YORK.—Chicago is the logical choice to repeat in the National League.

With the confidence that came with the 21 consecutive victories that swept them to the grand old rag last fall, in the greatest finish in baseball history, the young Cubs should prove much to formidable for none to robust opposition.

The Bruins, including the veterans, Charley Root, Charley Grimm and Gabby Hartnett, averaged only 26 years of age. Paced by the fleet Augie Galan and the brilliant Lon Warneke, the Wrigley entry ought to finish there or thereabouts for the next several campaigns.

The Cubs' strongest rivals again appear to be the St. Louis Cardinals.

and there is plenty of evidence the race in the senior wheel will develop into a two-club affair.

Shorter series will prevent a strong army from beating a weaker one until it is punch drunk. The Boston Beanebards will lose 20 games to Pittsburgh, 19 to Chicago, 18 to St. Louis, and 16 to New York, as did the Braves of 1935. Yet the Cubs and Cards possess sufficient potential strength to pull away from the remainder of the field.

It is my offside opinion that trailing Chicago and St. Louis in the order

There he goes again! It's Augie Galan. Inability of pitchers to keep the Cubs' young center-fielder and leadoff man off the bases is one of the principal reasons why the Chicago club sped to the National League pennant with 21 straight victories in '35 and why many pick the Bruins to repeat.

2 Kidnapings Mar Illinois Election

Democrats Snatched From Polls During Crucial Test for Nation

CHICAGO.—(AP)—Two kidnappings, with one election worker abducted under a policeman's fire, sent the Illinois primaries off to a turbulent start in Chicago Tuesday.

The violence came as a bumper Chicago registration began to pour into the polling places.

The first abduction victim reported to police was Ludwig Pytaszynski, 30, a Democratic precinct captain.

The other victim was Paul Witkowski, 60, who, police were told, was identified as a retired business man and a personal friend of Governor Horner.

Test for Nation
CHICAGO.—(AP)—Illinois' hot primary—the nation's first clear cut test between two Republican presidential aspirants in the 1936 campaign—nearly a close Sunday night with politicians awaiting the vote Tuesday for a sign of the state's trend in the November election.

The presidential preference vote for United States Senator William E. Borah of Idaho and Col. Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, held special interest as an omen of special portent.

1. As a test of comparative popularity of the contenders' platforms—Knox, stern foe of the New Deal; and Borah, sometimes friend and sometimes enemy of Roosevelt, but always a bitter critic of the Republican Old Guard.

2. As an indication of the extent of Illinois' support of President Roosevelt. He carried the state by an overwhelming majority in 1932. Although unopposed on Tuesday's primary ballot, his vote will be a mark for comparison with the Borah-Knox total on the Republican side.

A record vote is looked for if the weather conditions are favorable.

A 25-quart pressure cooker or a can sealer will be given to the home demonstration club in each of the four Extension Service districts which set up the best Pantry Stores exhibit on their county Achievement Day this fall.

In the state last year, 8,235 women in 238 communities in 60 counties took part in the contest and more than 3,600 interesting and educational exhibits were arranged by club women, according to Mrs. Ruby Mendenhall Smith, Extension Economist in food preservation, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture.

Each club entering must make a food preservation exhibit of some kind on the Achievement Day when it will be judged. Posters accompanying the exhibit must accompany the exhibit. Club members or a committee appointed for this purpose will decide the type of exhibit to be made.

The home demonstration agent has received the rules governing the 1936 contest.

Oral Admission Given Prosecutor by House Owner

Stewart Says L. L. Middlebrooks Told Him He Hired Bailey Springs

PRICE SET AT $100

All Four Arrested Men Are Free Under Bond of $1,500 Each

Prosecuting Attorney Ned Stewart said Tuesday that L. L. Middlebrooks, Baptist preacher and rural mail carrier, had made an oral confession in connection with the burning of the Middlebrooks home at Bailey Springs, December 24 in which three other Hempstead county men are held.

The prosecutor said that Middlebrooks confessed to him and "Shirley" Tim Bearden in the jail house at Washington Monday.

The substance of the confession, the prosecutor said, was:

"That Middlebrooks said he was financially embarrassed and was in debt. That the house was insured for more than it was worth and he didn't need the house, anyway."

"That Middlebrooks said a friend suggested that the house be burned and that Bailey Springs of Hope would be a good man to do the job."

"Springs was contacted and agreed to do the job for $100, and that $25 was paid Springs in advance with the understanding that he (Springs) was to be paid $75 more when the insurance was collected."

"And that if Springs failed to do the job that Middlebrooks would get his $25 back."

"Friend," unidentified.

Mr. Stewart said that Springs returned to reveal the identity of the friend quoted in the oral confession.

Besides Middlebrooks and Springs, two other men are held in connection with the fire. They are Joe Lowthorp who, according to officers, has started a writer's confession, and Woodard Breed of Hope.

All four of the men were at liberty Tuesday under $1,500 bond each for their appearance before a special session of the grand jury which meets next Monday.

Sheriff Bearden said Tuesday that neither Springs nor Breed had been questioned at length about the fire. That they had made bond, and had been released.

Springs, Breed and Lowthorp are charged with arson. Middlebrooks is charged with being an accessory before the fact of arson.

On Christmas Eve, the Middlebrooks home, occupied by Pink W. Taylor and family, was fired about 1 a. m. last December 24. The Taylor family was away from home at the time but the house was occupied by John Rowe, his wife and small child of Monroe, La.

The Rowe family came to Patmos to visit the Taylor family during the Christmas holidays. They were awakened by someone breaking in the front door. A few seconds later the front part of the house was in a blaze.

The Rowe family escaped through a rear door. The flames were extinguished before much damage was done.

The Truth About Diet

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygieia, the Health Magazine

Taken in moderation, coffee will not disturb health or shorten life. Children, people with unstable nervous systems, and those who react unfavorably to stimulation of any kind, however, should avoid coffee. And tea, too, for tea contains a substance the effects of which are similar to those of caffeine, which is responsible for stimulation from coffee.

Persons who find it difficult to sleep should avoid coffee before going to bed, or should try the caffeine from which most of the caffeine has been removed.

If caffeine whips up your nervous system to a point where it is unable to stand the strain, you should avoid the caffeine. Do not drink tea or coffee to relieve fatigue. It is much better to rest.

Drinking tea or coffee at such a time is like whipping a tired horse. The caffeine does not relieve the fatigue, but temporarily stimulates you so that temporarily you do not feel tired. A person engaged in mental activity sometimes will find a cup of tea or coffee a temporary brace of great value. Used for this purpose, it may be desirable, but when this process is repeated often, the effects of fatigue accumulate and are bound to be harmful.

The chief varieties of tea are the green and the black kinds. Green tea is made by steaming and drying leaves of the tea bush while they are fresh, allowing the leaves to become oxidized. This darkens their color, and increases the solubility of the tannin compounds they contain.

It is said that 65 per cent of all the tea consumed in the United States is black, 30 per cent is green, and of the

Today's Health Question

Q—Is it necessary to disinfect toilet seats and bathtub in a hotel?

A—The danger of acquiring any disease from toilet seats is not great, but it is sufficient to warrant care in their use, and even to warrant disinfection.

remaining 5 per cent is oolong tea. Oolong tea is at a stage between green and black.

A cup of strong tea or coffee contains one-tenth of a grain, or 1½ grains, of caffeine. Five to six grains of caffeine constitute a medicinal dose which, in those unaccustomed to it, will raise the blood pressure, speed the pulse, and stimulate the kidneys.

Neither coffee nor tea is important as a food substance. Coffee, because of its caffeine content, stimulates the higher brain centers, quickens the pulse, and relieves the sense of fatigue.

Coffee is habit-forming, but not in the same sense as are drugs such as opium and cocaine.

Many people believe that cocoa and chocolate are less stimulating than coffee and tea. Cocoa, however, contains theobromine, which stimulates. Because of this fact, the Committee on Foods of the American Medical Association has recommended that children should have chocolate or cocoa principally as flavoring for milk.

Chocolate products provide about 12.9 per cent protein, 48 per cent fat, 30 per cent carbohydrate, and about 2800 calories to a pound. Cocoa, which is pulverized chocolate deprived of a portion of its fat, provides 21 per cent protein, 29 per cent fat, and 38 per cent carbohydrate, with around 2250 calories a pound. Cocoa, therefore, is not as rich as chocolate.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

Back of the duller little stories in your newspaper there lies a wealth of poignant human drama—if you could only get at it.

Working on that theory, Winifred Holtby has written one of the spring's finest books—"South Riding" (Macmillan $2.50), which examines half a dozen excerpts from the minutes of a county council in England's Yorkshire and then digs out the story that goes with each one.

The minutes, for instance, will devote a matter-of-fact sentence to the announcement that a new principal has been hired for a county grammar school; immediately, Miss Holtby shows you the school, the energetic young woman who has been chosen to run it, the children who come under her influence, and the homes from which they come.

The minutes, again, will refer briefly to a new housing scheme; Miss Holtby translates that into its human terms, shows you the families that will be affected, the political canyons that are involved, and the whole series of little tragedies and comedies that follow.

Working in that way, she presents a remarkable picture of English life and builds a coherent and appealing narrative about the dreams people dream and the valiant, pitiful ways in which they try to realize them. Altogether, she has written an exceptionally good novel.

Miss Holtby died shortly after finishing this book. It is a pity, for she had something to say and knew how to say it.

Gorgeous

BEGIN HERE TODAY

TOBY RYAN, 20, is a photographic model, posing for photographs to be used in advertising. Unknown at first, she is soon in high demand in the studios, particularly after she is chosen as "The Hottest Soap Girl."

Toby shares an apartment with HARRIET HOLM, another model, engaged to marry CLYDE SABIN, whom Toby distrusts.

Wendy TIL JAMESON shows Toby with attentions for a time, and then seems to forget her. Toby's oldest friend is BILL, a blonde who works in an advertising agency. She is fond of Toby, but has never thought of him romantically.

JAY HILLYER, president of the Hottest Soap company, takes her to dinner and later she has several other engagements with him.

Toby and Harriet take part in a style show. Harriet, dressed as a bride, is waiting to go on when Toby remembers she has a letter for her. She gives Harriet the letter.

Now go on with this story CHAPTER XXX

HARRIET said, "Oh, Toby—" in a voice that was barely above a whisper. A few moments before she had been a picture of bridal beauty—the loveliest bride Toby had thought, that she had ever seen. Now Harriet's face was drenched of color—whiter than the gown she wore or the filmy veil about her shoulders. Her eyes, bleary and bewildered, stared at Toby's.

"What is it?" Toby demanded again. "Harriet, what's happened?"

Instead of answering, Harriet looked at the letter she was still clutching in her hand. "Read it," she said, holding it out to Toby.

It was the letter Clyde Sabin had written. Toby took it, hastily read the brief paragraphs.

"Dear Harriet: When you get this I will be on my way to California. This morning I was married to Mrs. Lynchfield. You probably remember that her husband, who died last winter, was an officer of the company.

"I hope you will not take this too hard, Harriet. My only excuse for not telling you sooner is that I couldn't bear to hurt you. But I am sure it is really for the best. I will always think of you as one of the sweetest girls I have ever known, and some day I know you will meet someone who will make you as happy as you deserve to be."

"Clyde?" Toby said. "Oh, darling, I'm so sorry!" The words sounded trivial and meaningless. Harriet was still standing there, ghostly white.

There was no sign of tears in her eyes, no sign of emotion at all in her face except that she pressed her lips together, trying to steady them.

"You ought to sit down," Toby said, putting an arm around her. "Here—I'll send the maid to get something for you."

But there was no time. Miss Wylie, the director of the style show, appeared and said crisply, "Is everyone ready? Line up, you bridesmaids. Where's our bride?"

She motioned toward Harriet. "You go in last," she said. "All right now. We're ready."

Toby turned to Harriet. "But you can't!" she said. "You can't go on now. Someone else will have to take your place!"

Harriet shook her head. "No," she said. "I'm all right. I'll go on."

"But you shouldn't—" Harriet was not listening. "My flowers," she said, turning to the maid. "Where are my flowers?"

A FEW moments later, the bridal bouquet in her arms, she was walking slowly, steadily out on the stage. Toby was never to forget the picture of Harriet in the glistening satin gown, her lovely red-gold hair, beneath the cap of lace and the long veil floating back from her shoulders. Harriet has never looked more beautiful. Toby's own heart was pounding and she stole anxious glances at her roommate.

But Harriet looked completely calm. She was like that afterwards in the dressing room. She took off the wedding gown and got into her street clothes with exactly her usual care. She stopped to put powder on her nose and see that the brim of her hat tilted over her eye as it should.

Out on the street, Toby said, "We'll take a cab home." She thought that, away from the others, Harriet's reserve would break. Toby said, "He wasn't good enough for you, Harriet. Not nearly good enough! I never thought so. I didn't want you to know it, but I never thought he was the man for you. This other woman has money."

"Suppose. She's the one to be sorry for! Tell me how much worse than he's treated you!"

Harriet said, "Don't talk like that, Toby."

"But it's true, every word of it. I'd like a chance to tell him what I think of him."

Harriet shook her head. "I—I just can't seem to believe it's happened," she said. "I can't seem to realize I won't see him again. Everything's over. It's ended—"

"But it isn't, darling. Everything's just beginning. A man who could do a thing like that isn't worth a minute's regret. It's going to be hard for a while, of course, but you'll be glad some day it happened this way. I know you will!"

Harriet said, "But he loved me. You're better off without that kind of love. It's the money he was thinking about. Don't you see that?"

"It's just that I can't realize it's happened—"

Hollywood

By Paul Harrison

HOLLYWOOD—Three-minute interview with Grace Moore's tow:

Q—Your name is Margie?

A—Moo—I mean, yes, Margie Holstein, film actress. I am also a hooper.

Q—Thank you. Now, Margie, since Miss Grace Moore mentioned you as one of the reasons why she didn't like Hollywood, it has occurred to us that you should be given an opportunity to state your side of the case.

A—Say, listen—I'm an old barn-stormer from way back! And I am not one to kick about the temperaments of fellow players.

Q—So your association in the studio was entirely pleasant?

A—Well, during our scene, Miss Grace Moore was gentle and kind. Of course I never worked with her in any under picture, but—

Prime Slinger

Q—That you have no idea why she mentioned you in announcing that she was through with Hollywood?

A—Well, I'm sure she wasn't jealous of my voice, although I have some fine low tones in the contralto range. As mein old feller, a Mr. Bashan, used to say—

Q—Never mind your old father. We may assume, then, that the reason for Miss Moore's dissatisfaction is pasture compression. Does it, Margie—you've got me doing it!

A—Some pun, eh, kid? Hay-hay!

Q—Skip it, please. Did you hear any comment by the other players?

A—Well, there was some talk about my stealing the milking scene, but that was all bullanoye, because I didn't try to horn in. When Grace Moore gets to singing, nothing can halter.

Discontente

Q—Where you on friendly terms with the director?

A—He was pretty bossy. Treated me like one of the common herd. But I am not one to be cowed by a mere director, because I am a producer myself.

Q—Yes, of course. Are you aware, Margie, that a spokesman for Miss Moore has said she was "only fooling" when she denounced you and Hollywood, and that she will return to make more pictures?

A—Well, I will let bygones be bygones, if that isn't just a stall. I think somebody gave Grace a bum steer, anyway, and when Hollywood opinion is aroused it is useless to buck.

Kicks at Advice

Q—Would you venture any advice to Miss Moore upon her return?

A—I cut, but I don't chew to. Grace is a star, and the movie fans alfalfa her. I don't believe I shall heifer be a celebrity.

Q—I'm afraid you're too modest, Margie. Incidentally, have you considered retiring from the screen? Are there, no-haps, greener pastures on Broadway?

A—Leave Hollywood—I should say not! My dear, I think it's just too, too bovine!

Engineers Declare Not a Single Levee in Valley Is Threatened

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(AP)—With the Ohio river practically stationary at Cairo, the Southern flood situation cleared considerably Monday as fair weather continued.

While the Mississippi, into which the Ohio empties, will remain above the flood stage for several days, engineers reiterated their belief that not a single levee in the Mississippi valley is in danger.

Old Songs, Old Friends.
Old songs, old friends, old scenes,
old days,
Old things, never yet old;

That softens sadness yet. —Selected.

Estes Signed for LaCrosse Match

Moore Meets Chaney in Feature Bout at Fair Park Thursday

Toots Estes, above, Clever Oklahoman, was signed Tuesday to meet Gill LaCrosse in the semi-final of Fair Park arena wrestling program Thursday night.

Estes, a scientific grappler, appeared here last week against Pat O'Brien in a match that went to a no fall decision after 45 minutes of clean wrestling.

"Handsome Jack" Moore returns this week to meet Lon Chaney in the feature bout.

Promoter Bert Mauldin said that the size of the crowd this week would determine whether he would be able to book Jess Willard, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, to referee the matches here next week.

Willard, who knocked out Jack Johnson for the title in Havana several years ago, is touring the Southern states officiating in boxing and wrestling matches.

has been ordered to wear glasses while reading. Cochran's loss or the loss of his efficiency to any big extent would be irreparable. Regardless of balloting the top Tiger is the most valuable man in baseball. Rival arrays fear that he will see all right when the shooting starts however.

Simmons Enthusiastic
Gosse Guelin, 35, may fall apart like the one-horse show, but in the in-field there still remains Al Simmons, Pete Fox, Gerald Walker and Jo-Jo White. Simmons, 35, probably never will again be the hitter he was in Philadelphia, but he has the enthusiasm of a recruit in his new surroundings and hardly can miss being considered help.

Arm trouble this spring may spell the beginning of the end for the 35-year-old General Crowder, who accounted for 16 engagements last season but Cochran has bolstered his staff with Red Phillips, who bugged 20 for Beaumont, Chad Kinsey, who grabbed 18 for Montreal, and Jack Wade, a southpaw with a fast one who nearly won all of his 17 games for the Portland Coastiers in the last half of the 1935 season.

Detroit comes right back with the standouts: Little Tommy Bridges, Schoolboy Rowe, and Elden Auker. Roxie Lawton won three games after reporting last fall. The bespectacled Vic Kersell is still around, and Elton Housert is a capable relief worker.

Hank Greenberg is only starting, and Charley Gehring, 33, comes close to being the finest all-around baseball player in the business. Billy Rogell has proved himself a pennant-winning shortstop. Marvin Owen is vastly underrated.

Jimmy Foxx, Roger Cramer and Eric McNair will improve the Red Sox, both at bat and in the field. The Hub entry has plenty of outfielders even if it turns out that Heinie Manush is through.

Where the Red Sox fall short is in the box. Grove, 35, cannot go on forever, and Wes Ferrell may not again be able to pull the strings skillfully enough to chalk up 25 victories. The big hope is Jimmy Macrum, and he's off to a bad start unless the removal of his tonsils cures hisailing arm.

Di Maggio, Sandra Finds
Outfielder Joe Di Maggio and pitcher Steve Sundra appear to be Yankee finds, but they may be a year or two away as major leaguers. Gomez has been wild and ineffective. There is no satisfactory substitute for Lazzeri.

Cleveland has the most promising pitching staff in the majors. Johnny Allen gives the corps another regular starter and with Harder, Willis Hudlin, and Oral Hildebrand is capable of taking the Indians almost any distance.

Estak must keep his health and prove that he can handle pitchers, however, and Hal Trosky again must find the range.

Chicago banks on the veteran Ted Lyons and several promising young pitchers, but did nothing in the way of replacing Simmons and will do well to top the second flight.

Funeral Service Is Held Up to Await Arrival of Her Son

Mrs. J. W. Powell, 53, died at her home in the Mt. Nebo community, southern Hempstead county, at 9 a. m. Monday. She had been a resident of the county practically all her life.

Funeral services had not been completed Tuesday, pending the arrival of a son, I. W. Powell, of Pittsburgh.

Will the league take away the A. F. of L. dog, not only in matters of politics, but with respect to the internal affairs of organized labor as well? Berry's friends deny that the league was formed as a nucleus for a labor party in 1940. Yet in these troubled times, it is impossible for anyone to be sure what may become of group movements such as these.

Certainly it is interesting to consider the three possibilities—that the league actually will succeed in harmonizing labor support behind the President, that it will succeed in nothing and will go the way of many another non-partisan political venture, or finally that it will lead to one grand and costly political row in the ranks of organized labor.

The state of Illinois has 209 automobiles for each filling station, according to estimates.

During 1933, nearly 3,000,000 people were caught traveling by rail in India without having paid their fares.

Argentina is one of the world's leading producers of animal hair, turning out about 9,000,000 pounds annually.

Frustrated Flight

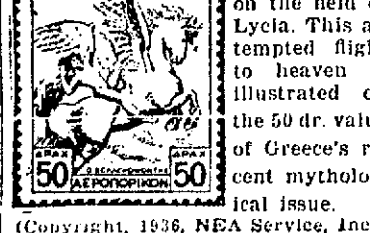

WHEN Bellerophon repulsed the faithless Antea, wife of King Proetus, she sought revenge by falsely accusing the young man before her husband. Proetus would not soil his own hands in murder, so he sent Bellerophon to Antea's father, Iobates, with orders to accomplish the deed.

Cunningly, Iobates sent Bellerophon on a mission to slay the fire-breathing Chimera, the monster that had the head of a lion, the body of a goat, and the tail of a dragon. But, with the aid of Pegasus, the winged horse that had sprung from the head of the slain Medusa, Bellerophon returned victorious.

Iobates sent the young man on other dangerous missions, and each time he returned victor. The brave deeds convinced Iobates of Bellerophon's innocence, and the older man offered his daughter Antea in marriage.

But when, drunk with success, Bellerophon sought to fly to heaven on the back of Pegasus, the winged horse threw him, and he fell to death on the field of Lycia. This attempted flight to heaven is illustrated on the Greek's recent mythological issue.

Baldwin Doomed, Is British Belief

Neville Chamberlain Likely to Be Next Premier of England

By CHARLES P. NUTTER
Associated Press Correspondent
LONDON.—(AP)—Growing belief exists in England that the political days of Stanley Baldwin, the prime minister and No. 1 man in the British government, are numbered.

Responsible political circles are convinced that Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, is being groomed as his successor.

Any actual move to restore Baldwin to private life is, however, believed six months or a year away.

But when it comes, competent observers believe, the upheaval is certain to bring Sir Samuel Hoare, scapegoat of the Hoare-Laval episode, back to the cabinet with more prestige than ever.

Baldwin recently has been the target of developing political attacks which claim a wide backing in the House of Commons, including factions which hitherto frequently have supported the prime minister.

Critics Call Him "Unsafe"

Not only is it being charged that Baldwin failed to realize the need for national defense, taking refuge in procrastination, but also his appointment of Sir Thomas Inskip as minister for coordination of national defense, prompted an outburst of open criticism.

In a bitterly worded editorial the Independent Observer wrote that "there can be no safety in dependence upon him. To his habit of procrastination, especially in supposed matters of urgency, a thousand years are but a day."

Tory criticism of the Inskip appointment was especially marked.

Most challenging was the attack by Sir Austen Chamberlain, ultra-conservative former foreign secretary and brother of Neville.

In the defense debate, Sir Austen rebuked Baldwin for his "errors of judgment," while the Inskip appointment brought further stinging remarks from the powerful conservative who thought Winston Churchill should have had the new ministerial job.

Baldwin Apologizes Cited

Britain, stated Sir Austen, was justified in "demanding great changes, and evidence that everything is being done to prevent the continuance or recurrence of such errors as those for which the prime minister has twice within the last two years asked the pardon of the house."

He referred to Baldwin's apologies for misjudging the speed and danger of German rearmament and the abortive Hoare-Laval plan for ending the Italian-Ethiopian war.

Young conservatives, to whom Baldwin long has been a hero, are understood to be losing confidence in him, and feel that he should make way for a younger man with a better grasp on foreign affairs.

Members of parliament recently have noticed an amazing change in the stocky prime minister who took over his office from the aging hand of Ramsey MacDonald less than a year ago. It was his third time in the post, he having served previously from 1923

Motor Factories Aid Safety Drive

$15,000 Donated to Campaign at Evanston, Ill., "Safest City"

EVANSTON, Ill.—(AP)—A fresh assault on America's mounting traffic toll is to be directed from this Chicago suburb, long known as one of the nation's safest cities.

This newest project in the drive on automobile deaths is to be conducted by Northwestern university in co-operation with the Automobile Manufacturers Association and the International Association of Chiefs of Police. The A. M. A. has agreed to contribute $15,000 annually toward the project.

Plans provide for expanding a traffic officers' training school from a single two weeks' course to at least three distinct courses.

Police departments throughout the country will be invited to send representatives to these sessions.

Lieut. Franklin M. Krenzel, director of the bureau of accident prevention of the Evanston police department, has been named director of the institute.

With the leadership Evanston three times in the last four years has won the National Safety Council's award as the nation's safest city. He will be assisted by Capt. Ray Ashworth of the Wichita, Kan., police department.

Under the provisions of a tentative program, the institute will:

1. Install traffic accident prevention bureaus in selected cities and states.

2. Assist in improving traffic curricula and give instruction in statewide police schools such as are sponsored by state municipal leagues, state police associations and the American Municipal association.

3. Co-operate with Harvard university's accident prevention bureau in connection with extension courses and curricula preparation.

4. Provide traffic information service to police departments. Assemble files of best safety and prevention practices.

5. Co-operate with the National Safety Council in improving city and statewide safety programs.

One of the larger air lines has gone nautical and now calls its senior pilots captains and its co-pilots first officers.

to 1924 and from 1924 to 1929.

Baldwin, they say, appears a victim of nerves in the rising clash and importance of international relations, of which he admittedly is no master. His forte is domestic relations, in keeping with his role as an English squire and farmer, a fact of which he repeatedly boasts.

Baldwin has been in politics 40 years, almost 30 of them as member of parliament for the Bewdley division of Worcestershire. He has held most of the high cabinet posts leading to the premiership, and has spared enough time from politics to accumulate a fortune in the steel industry.

It has been rumored that he plans to retire after the coronation of King Edward next year, but the direct political opposition may cause him to retreat to private life before that time.

Precaution Against Sun Burn

These days the burnt child fears too much sunshine, so little Miss Cautious rubs a soothing balm on brother's back to ward off a painful sunburn. Now that spring has brought sunbathing back, no sunshine addict can scorn the good example she sets—and don't overdo exposure to the tanning rays.

Senate Recruits Prove Prominent

Holt, Minton, Schwollenbach, Bilbo, Keep Washington on Alert

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Associated Press Correspondent
WASHINGTON.—The senate's crop of youngsters—those who rode in on the unprecedented wave of Roosevelt popularity in 1934—are amazing old timers by the way they are stepping out these days.

Holt of West Virginia, Minton of Indiana, Schwollenbach of Washington, Bilbo of Mississippi, who has been observing a self-imposed year of silence—have been parading across the front pages during the past few weeks with as much gusto as the oldest senators in point of service.

Only "Honest Vic" Donahay of Ohio seems to have resisted the temptation to join the parade. He hasn't made a speech yet, says privately he has no idea when he will break his silence.

There are varying opinions as to how these new senators have acquitted themselves in their initial attempts.

Bilbo Met Reverse

Bilbo, of course, suffered a crushing defeat. Five hours display of oratory on his part to block the confirmation of a federal judge netted him exactly showdown. Minton and Schwollenbach, members of the Black lobby committee, have been savage in their attacks on those who would attempt to thwart their ineffectual actions have been. Benson of Minnesota, who came to Washington to take the seat of the late Senator Schall, has been active, but his career in the senate ends with the present session. He plans to return to Minnesota and run for governor this year on the farmer-labor ticket.

Guffey's Name Looms

Guffey of Pennsylvania has his name on one of the major "new deal" measures passed during the present congress—the Guffey-Snyder coal bill. In addition, he is chairman of the Democratic senatorial elections committee charged with the duty of electing as many Democrats as possible to the senate in November.

Since the days of the Long, the time-honored custom of the senate has been to elect its members for long terms and not heard until they had served their apprenticeship for longer or shorter periods.

Things move so fast on Capitol Hill these days and are of such importance that from sheer necessity "newcomers" are forced into activity.

Try installing some "new" ideas outside and away from the screened front porch if you desire to keep the sects away in summer.

Frisco Observes 'Quake Birthday'

City Will Pause April 18, 30th Anniversary of Great Disaster

By SAM JACKSON Associated Press Correspondent SAN FRANCISCO.—(AP)—A city unshaken by earthquakes but still jittery about fires will pause April 18 to remember a day 30 years ago when both catastrophes struck at once, taking between 500 and 600 lives and wrecking property of $350,000,000.

San Franciscans have been accused of referring to the tragedy of 1906 as a "fire" instead of a quake because of a "false sense of pride—a refusal to recognize California's ever present earthquake threat. But to 300,000 refugees who camped in parks and streets for three days while the flames roared, the disaster was primarily a "fire."

The earth jolt occurred at 5:12 in the morning; the great San Andreas fault slipped a jog undersea and violently tilted the coast over an area 50 miles long and 30 miles wide.

San Francisco buildings were violently shaken but few actually collapsed, although chimneys and cornices cascaded to the ground. Insurance companies found that only five per cent of the $350,000,000 damage from quake and fire was directly attributed to the quake.

Flames broke out almost at once in scores of places and spread with lightning speed as the city's water system had been jolted to pieces. By evening of the first day eight square miles had been burned and 300,000 of the city's 450,000 residents had deserted their homes in panic.

Whole blocks of buildings were dynamited to create firebreaks. Authorities herded 200,000 of the refugees into Golden Gate park and made desperate efforts to supply them with food and water.

On the second day a stiff wind fanned the flames to the city's water system, and entrance down the peninsula on which San Francisco is situated. With the third day, the fire abated somewhat but completed the ruin of the financial and shopping districts.

It was not until the fourth day that citizens could set to work to restore the 28,000 buildings which lay in embers.

The catastrophe occurred before the days of city planning, and rapid rebuilding, authorities admit, showed more courage and zeal than wisdom. The city of today is one of the skyscrapers and of lofty apartment houses crowded close together.

Engineers say that in case of another earthquake few if any buildings would fall. San Francisco, however, vividly remembers the "fire" and is a city on guard against a possible repetition of such havoc.

named, will be Pittsburgh, New York, Cincinnati, Brooklyn, Boston and Philadelphia.

Cubs Go with Galan Red Corriden, the coach "made" the Cubs a year ago by suggesting that Galan, a mediocre second baseman, be switched to the outfield. There the California kid, now only 24, found himself, and turned a third-place outfit into a pennant winner.

Galan, a switch hitter, is the leader the champions follow. Inability of the pitchers to keep the Cubs' leadoff man off the bases perhaps was the principal reason for the club's rise. The Rube Keley beauty led the senior wheel in runs scored and stolen bases.

Those favoring the St. Louis array point to the help Taran Farmlee ought to give the Deans, but overlook the fact that Werneke again will be given considerable assistance by Bill Lee, Larry French, Tex Carleton, Root, and Roy Henshaw, not to mention Clay Bryant, Mike Kowalik and Charley Flowers.

Gaby Hartnett was voted the most valuable player in the loop last term. He will be spoiled by the competent Kenney O'Dea and Walter Stephenson.

The Cubs have the most accomplished, second basing combination in baseball in Bill Jurgens and Billy Herman.

In returning to first base, Grimm is keeping able Phil Caravetta in the dugout. Stanley Hack rounds out the smoothest kind of infield, with Woody English the highest-salaried reservist in either major circuit.

Galan, in centerfield this trip, is flanked by Frank Demaree and Chuck Klein. The Cards will require a couple of more Deans of Klein, the Hoosier Hurricane of Philadelphia, finds the range again. Tuck Steinbeck, a young man of unlimited possibilities, and Johnny Gill, a seasoned hand up from Minneapolis with a mark of 361, are the extra Cub outfielders.

Cards Lack Reserves The Deans once more figure to take the Cards a long way, but the Giants gave up on Farmlee last season, and after you list the large young man from Michigan, the St. Louis pitching becomes questionable.

The Red Birds' first line will do, but the array is without satisfactory substitutes for either Frank Frisch or Charley Gelbert, who may experience difficulty in weathering a 154-game schedule.

At Todd gives the Pirates something they have lacked—catching.

The Pittsburgh pitchers, Cy Blanton, Ralph Birkhofer, Waite Hoyt, Bill Swift, Big Jim Weaver, Red Lucas, Guy Bush and Mace Brown, should improve in the hands of the husky backstop from Philadelphia. If Bush regains any fair amount of the form that was his in Chicago, the Bucs ought to beat out the Giants for third place.

Pittsburgh has the best hitter in baseball in Arky Vaughan. It won't be long before Little Poison Waner joins Big Poison in the outfield. The Bucs will present a stout setup just as long as Pie Traynor can stay in the lineup.

New York scarcely figures to have the pitching staff it enjoyed the past three seasons. Carl Hubbell shows the inevitable result of having been a work horse. Hal Schumacher has bogged down toward the fog end of the last two grinds. Fat Fred Fitzsimmons elbow was operated on last summer.

Bill Terry now has one trick knee against Travis Jackson's two. Dick Bartell was a disappointment in 1935. Burgess Whitehead does not hit a long ball and comes to the club with the reputation of an athlete who requires rest.

Reds Top Second Flight Cincinnati is expected to top the second division, with the youngsters who took the Reds out of the red last season showing improvement.

Brooklyn is rated sixth on pitching. The Dodgers have several big names in that department and at least one of the, George Earnshaw, has shown unmistakable signs of getting back on the right track.

Casey Stengel has a real fireball artist in Van Lingle Mungo, and may stir up some trouble if he can get anything out of Ed Brandt, Fred Frankhouse, William Watson, Clark, Emil Leonard, the ancient and honorable Tom Zachary, and Al Butcher, Tom Baker and Harry Eisenstat, recruits.

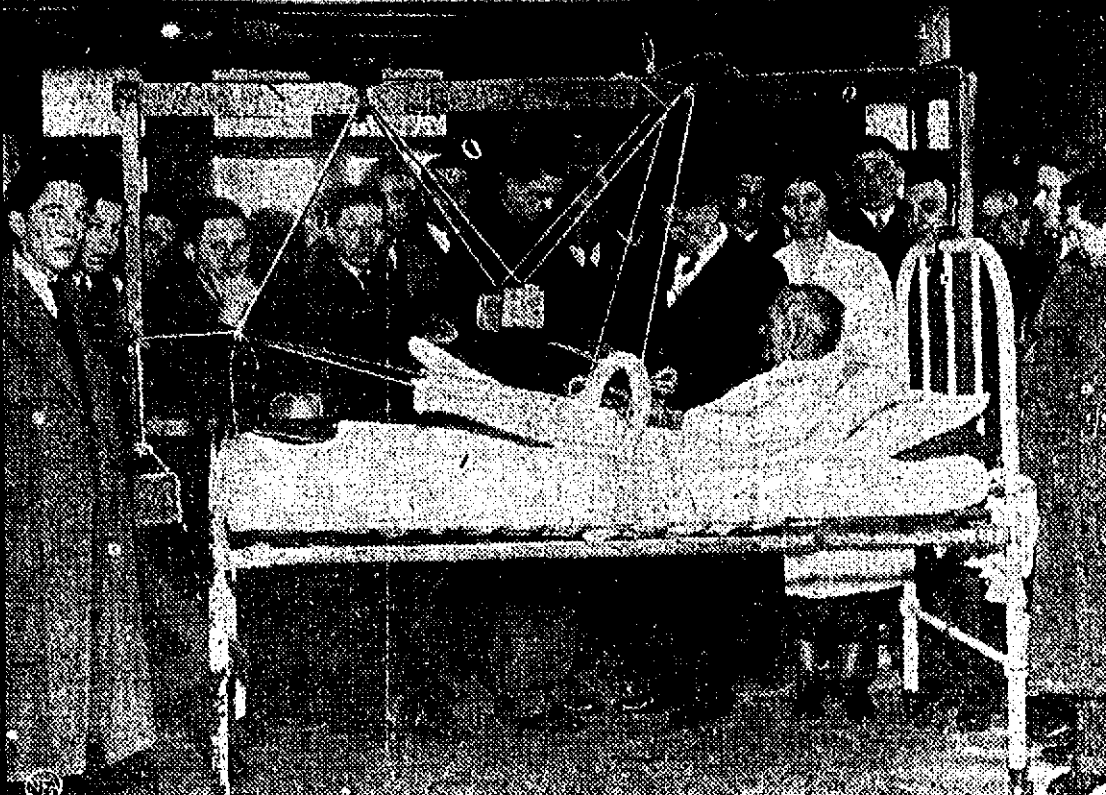

Freddie Lindstrom will give the Flatbush Fansters some sense, but the club is either experimenting or is none too well equipped in too many positions to get out of the second flight.

The new National League deal in Boston is limited to a nickname, although the Bees should keep out of the cellar on little more than bolstered morale.

The Phillies used to make a lot of runs and lose. They no longer make the runs.

Wheat, wine, olive oil, and hemp are the four leading crops of Italy.

Visit to Hospital Is Lesson to Reckless Drivers

Hammering home a lesson in safety to reckless drivers, Municipal Judge John Gutknecht, shown at left of the nurse, conducted 29 youthful speeders to the Chicago hospital bedside of John McCann, a traffic victim, shown with his injured limbs strapped up and elevated. Following that, the party visited the morgue and the offenders contributed a fund of about $200 to aid victims of careless driving.
